

Abstract of Disclosure

A location system for locating a mobile user equipment comprises at least two measurement devices configured to provide measurement data for location determination. A quality controller is provided, the controller being configured to provide quality information of measurements by the at least two measurement devices. Quality information of measurements by the at least two measurement devices is stored in a storage. A selection controller provides selection information for selection of measurement devices based upon quality information stored in the storage.